Telegraph is storm victim—but we did publish

This edition of the Dixon Evening Telegraph is not the one we had intended to deliver to our readers. The format is not our usual one.

We were a victim of the storm and the gigantic power failure which hit Dixon and the surrounding area overnight.

Telegraph facilities depend on electric power. Electricity powers our presses. If the presses cannot run we cannot publish. In addition, our computerized type-setting facilities were stilled by the power outage. The machines which punch the tape which is fed through the computers depend on electrical power.

But our telephones were working. So were our people. While waiting for the power to be restored, we have tried to get together all the facts that we can assemble on the power shortage, its extent and its effects on the community.

Even our leased wire from the Associated Press, which enables us to bring you national and world happenings was silenced.

We were unable to print pictures in our darkroom because the enlarger operates off electricity as does the automatic machine which processes the pictures.

Some of us were doing jobs other than our regular ones. Sports Editor Mike Cunniff was pressed into service (if you'll pardon the pun) as a pressman for a time. The other part of his day was spent reading proof. Society Editor Fae Thomas was reading proof.

Printer John Jacobs was called in from a few days of vacation to fill the gap in the composing room. Two of our regular tape punchers were unable to be on the job.

Nearly everyone in the news room was assembling all the storm news possible.

We are planning to do all within our limits to bring you a newspaper. It is sure to be late.

Power went off at the Telegraph plant at 3 a.m. and was not restored until 11 a.m.

City delivery will not be so much of a problem, but the wind and drifting snow have closed many area roads. Those of our readers in the outlying areas may get your papers quite late, but you will get them.

Some of our regular features have been omitted so that we can give you the best, most representative edition possible under the conditions.

We have tried to service our advertisers and our readers to the best of our abilities.

State of emergency as worst snowstorm in memory and power blackout hits the area

Lee County Civil Defense Director Earl Kelchner called it the "worst storm in memory," in declaring an emergency situation for all of Lee County as this morning's storm socked in high snow drifts which brought literally everything to a standstill.

To complicate matters, a weather-related explosion and fire at Commonwealth Edison substation on West First Street left Lee, Whiteside and Ogle Counties in darkness.

Power to most areas in and around Dixon was restored by 10:50 a.m., however some scattered areas remained powerless, according to Edison officials.

A breaker located behind the Edison plant on West First Street went out at 4:28 a.m. which, according to officials, complicated an already bad situation.

Edison crews had been called in at 2:30 a.m. when spotted blackouts were reported as the storm ripped through power lines.

An official from Edison explained the blackout was caused by lightning which struck a large circuit breaker, about the size of a large van. The breaker was filled with oil, which acts as a cooling agent, the spokesman said. Fire broke out when the lightning struck the breaker and completely destroyed the unit.

Dixon Firemen pumped 1,000 gallons of water onto the breaker to douse the flames. A portable breaker was later put into use which restored power in many areas.

Power remained out at Amboy, Sublette and Garden Plain at noontime today, however, officials expected to restore power to those areas sometime this afternoon.

All roads in Lee, Whiteside and Carroll Counties were reported hazardous and closed in many instances.

The following highways were closed at noontime today, according to State Police: U.S. 52 and U.S. 51 between U.S. 30 and Mendota; Ill. 38 near Rochelle; Ill. 26 north of Dixon near Freeport Road and Ill. 2 east of Lyndon. Police said sections of U.S. 30 and Ill. 26 are open in one lane.

All factories, businesses and schools were ordered closed on Kelchner's orders as high winds drifted more than six inches of heavy wet snow into the area.

Near Coleta in Whiteside County, a conservation officer on a snowmobile had to plow seven miles to a rural home to carry a boy suffering an appendicitis attack to an ambulance waiting on Ill. 88. The boy was rushed to Community General Hospital, Sterling.

No storm-related injuries had been reported to police in the Law Enforcement Center. Phone lines, however, "have been lit up like a Christmas tree since 4 a.m., according to Dixon Police Lt. Paul Nusbaum, "with people wanting to know what happened."

In Ogle County, sheriff Jerry Brooks activated a snowmobile patrol involving more than 60 snowmobilers who assisted in getting stranded motorists to safety. Brooks said traffic was at a standstill. "Even the snowplows are having a tough time getting through."

As the explosion knocked out power to KSB Hospital, an auxiliary generator was put into operation, restoring essential power lines within the hospital.

A hospital spokesman said the only problem encountered was one of staffing, with many employes not able to get to work.

Snow removal crews hit Dixon streets shortly after 2:30 a.m. when snow began drifting. Arterial streets in the downtown area were cleared by noontime, however, residential areas remained hazardous.

Officials have asked the cooperation of residents in keeping their cars in their driveways and off the street wherever possible. Many streets remained unplowed due to cars blocking traffic lanes.

Garbage normally collected today will be picked up Saturday.

Snow removal crews will be clearing snow from downtown streets tonight. Residents are asked to move their cars from the curb in the downtown area to faciliate the removal.

Some officials expressed concern at mid-morning over home heating which was knocked out along with the power blackout and caused the thermometer to drop in most homes.

The Rock Falls-Dixon basketball game scheduled tonight at Lancaster Gymnasium has been postponed until Saturday night, however, the high school wrestling team did travel to Peoria for a tournament there.

No mail will be delivered to city or rural addresses by the Dixon postal employes as a result of the heavy and blowing snow.

The Dixon National Bank and the City National Bank and Trust Co., both closed today at 12:30 p.m., and will be open Saturday from 10 a.m., to noon.

The Dixon Home Federal and Savings and Loan Association and the First Federal Loan and Savings Association were both closed today and both plan to be open Saturday, Dixon Home from 8:30 a.m. to noon, and First Federal from 8:30 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Many employes at Dixon State School whose jobs are not being in direct care for DSS residents today are volunteering to take the places of employes who did not get to work.

Mrs. Margaret Tagge, personnel director, said barbers, clerical and professional employes and others who have other category of jobs are volunteering to work in patient-care jobs.

Some night employes were held over until those who are to relieve them came to work.

Mrs. Tagge said arrangements have been made for employes to sleep at DSS if they are held over or cannot get home.

Mrs. Tagge noted one Ph.D. psychologist is washing dishes and exclaimed, "These people have been wonderful."

In downtown Chicago, winds popped windows out of the Sears Tower and people were swept off their feet when wind blew the glass out of three revolving doors in the Civic Center, making it impossible for people to cross the lobby.

Late storm reports

Civil Defense Director Earl Kelchner lifted the emergency ban imposed for Lee County at 2 p.m. today. Kelchner said the last areas to be cleared were Amboy and Sublette.

"Power was restored to those areas at approximately 1:30 p.m." Kelchner said. The only problem remaining are the roads "but if the weather holds we'll be out of that too."

The forecast, meanwhile, was calling for a 50 per cent chance of more snow tonight with frigid temperatures.

Oregon fire destroys bowling lanes, store, apartments

This was the scene at Oregon as fire fighters battled to control the blaze which destroyed Hawk Bowling Lanes, the Ben Franklin Store and four apartments. (Telegraph Photo)

OREGON — A spark from an automatic pinsetter at Hawk Lanes touched off a blaze Thursday night which destroyed the bowling alley, a Ben Franklin Store and four apartments in downtown Oregon.

Flames raged out of control for more than three hours before firemen could douse the gas-fed fire. According to Oregon Fire Chief Elmer Mammen the fire broke out shortly after 6 p.m. in one of the automatic pinsetter machines and spread to a rear wall of the building rupturing a gas meter.

Workers from Northern Illinois Gas Co. were called to the scene after it was found that the gas main feeding the fire was buried beneath a sidewalk.

A jackhammer chopped away at the concrete and enabled crews to turn off the main. Shortly after, the fire was brought under control.

Damage was expected to go into the thousands of dollars although Chief Mammen was not able to determine the exact amount of damage.

Firemen remained on the scene through the night. Several firefighters were believed to be overcome by heavy smoke which perpetrated the downtown area most of the evening.

At least one fireman was hospitalized for smoke inhalation. John Mann, Oregon, was transported to KSB Hospital where he was released following treatment.

Nearby Offset Preparations, Inc., escaped serious damage from the blaze. A firewall separating the two buildings held back the intensive heat and flame, officials said.

Employes of the firm and spectators pitched in to remove photographic equipment and files in the event the fire spread.

The bowling alley is located in the basement of the Ben Franklin Store. The apartments were housed over the store.

Fire officials were sifting through the debris this morning. It was not known what caused the malfunction of the pinsetter. Apparently a belt which controls the lifting mechanism became stuck. The overheated motor apparently shot off sparks setting the pins afire.

Mutual aid was given Oregon from Mt. Morris, Polo and Byron Fire Departments.

Hose lines were strewn around the entire block as firemen sprayed water from the front and rear of the building.

The buildings involved are located one-half block east of Ill. 2 on Ill. 64.

town Kankakee set off an FBI alarm in the Post Office, causing police to seal off the building for about ten minutes.

Heavy winds and blizzard conditions also were reported in the northwestern part of the state.

O'Hare International Airport was closed to incoming flights, although by 8 a.m. a few departing flights were able to leave. Some flights were diverted as far as Pittsburgh and Minneapolis.

Rockford reported 6 inches of snow at 7 a.m., Moline had 3 inches and Chicago only 1, although some northwestern suburbs reported up to 6 inches accumulation. Blizzard-like snow was still falling in all those areas by 11 a.m.

The National Weather Service reported hazardous road conditions throughout northern Illinois, normal in Southern Illinois and wet to snowy in central Illinois.

Gasoline shortage is causing chaos

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Chaos, that's the word for the gasoline shortage.

While the federal gasoline allocation system has failed to ease acute shortages in much of the country, odd-even rationing plans in hard-hit states, counties and communities often confuse the situation.

In some cases, conflicts among county, community, state and federal regulations leave a gas-thirsty John Q. Public angry and bewildered as he waits in long lines to get $3 worth.

And whether he gets $3 worth or a full tank is determined by the station owner who may have a rationing system of his own.

In Florida, for example, Sarasota County uses the Oregon plan of odd-even gas purchases. Cars with license plates ending in even numbers may purchase gas on even days and those with odd plates on odd days. Drivers in the county with out-of-state plates may buy an additional five gallons no matter the day, but the city of Sarasota does not allow such purchses by out-of-staters.

New York Gov. Malcolm Wilson said he has "a visceral reaction against government directing people what to do" and has declined to make mandatory the voluntary Oregon odd-even now in force.

But the Westchester County legislature passed a mandatory Oregon buying plan this week, including the provision that local community governments can supercede it.

Already the Yonkers City Council has passed a law that includes the basic Westchester County provisions and adds that stations may establish hours when they may cater to regular customers only. That despite a Federal Energy Office ruling that gasoline stations cannot favor regular customers.

And in upstate New York, Saratoga Springs has adopted a different voluntary odd-even plan based on the days of the week. Motorists with odd-numbered plates can get gas on Monday, Wednesday, Friday and Sunday, while even-plated motorists get gas on the other days.

Hawaii has four different gas plans in effect, all mandatory. But since the state has four islands, each with its own plan, there is no overlap.

Adding to the confusion, station operator protests against federal handling of the gas shortages were threatened or under way in five Eastern states - Pennsylvnia, Delaware, Maryland, Connecticut and New York.

Some Delaware operators began a pump-out protest Thursday, vowing to sell gas as fast as customers wanted to buy it until their month's allocations were gone.

In Washington, Federl Energy Office chief William E. Simon said his office was working on a new allocation formula. He also met with governors from six hard-hit states: Kentucky, Maryland, Massachusetts, North Carolina, Rhode Island and Washington.

Federal officials have admitted widespread failure in the first month of allocation attempts. They point to bad data, inexperience, over-reliance on oil company cooperation and political factors.

FEO state-by-state estimates of gas supplies were wildly wrong, often by more than 30 per cent and even by 60 per cent.

A fire shortly after midnight hit this home at 521 College Ave. In battling the blaze some household goods and burning items were thrown out the window where they became covered by snow. The home is occupied by Lois Majors. (Telegraph Photo)

Busy night for Dixon firemen

At 12:40 a.m. today Dixon firemen were called to the residence of Lois Majors, 521 College Ave., when a fire of undetermined origin caused extensive damage to the back porch of the home and a bedroom.

The amount of damage to the property is also undetermined.

The Fire Department was also called Friday night to the residence of Mrs. Kenneth Rowe, 911 Institute Blvd.

Firemen determined that an entrance cable broke under the weight of heavy snow; the neutral wire shorted causing a fire in the basement of the home, which caused fairly extensive damage to the basement floor and walls.

At 6 a.m. today Dixon firemen were called to KSB Hospital to investigate a strange odor on the first floor in the maternity section.

It was determined that fumes from an auxiliary power unit in use because of the power outage, were drifting into the area's ventilation system, and the condition was corrected.

Release of editor by tonight expected

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — The abductors of Atlanta Constitution editor Reg Murphy have contacted an intermediary and have said Murphy will be released tonight if "all goes well," the FBI said.

A man who identified himself as a colonel in the right-wing American Revolutionary Army telephoned a citizen — according to a plan outlined in a taped-recorded message from Murphy Thursday night — and asked that the citizen call the newspaper.

Leo E. Conroy, FBI agent in charge of the Atlanta office, gave the following information at a news conference in the Constitution and Atlanta Journal building:

The citizen, who was provided with a code word given to authenticate the message, was instructed by the "colonel" to tell the newspaper to broadcast his instructions within 20 minutes.

The "colonel" said he wanted the head of the FBI in Atlanta to broadcast the announcement

He also changed the ways in which he wanted the ransom paid, including the number of suitcases involved.

Conroy said, "we're attempting to comply in every manner with the abductors demands."

The newspaper said earlier that it would meet the demands for the $700,000 ransom, the amount specified in the telephone call today.

Conroy added that the safety of Murphy would be the concern of the FBI.

Murphy's family declined comment on the phone call.

Earier, hundreds of calls, purporting to convey a ransom message, poured into the Constitution overnight, but all were said by newspaper executives to be false.

Earlier, William H. Fields, executive editor of the Constitution and the Journal, said the last 30 seconds of the tape received Thursday by Constitution Managing Editor Jim Minter contained a code word that would identify the real call. It didn't show up in any of the fake calls.

3 shot to death in hijack try

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP) — A security guard and airline copilot were shot and killed today when a man carrying a homemade bomb attempted to hijack a Delta Airlines jetliner at Baltimore-Washington International Airport, authorities said.

The would-be hijacker was shot to death by a policeman shooting through a cockpit window from outside the plane, police said.

The plane's pilot was critically wounded duing the shooting, police said. The passengers were not harmed.

The shooting occured at about 7 a.m. as the DC9 was being boarded for a scheduled flight to Atlanta.

Authorities said the would-be hijacker, about 43, walked up to security guard George N. Ramsburg and shot him several times in the back of the head.

The man then boarded the plane, where the pilot and copilot were shot, said Thomas Farrow, special agent in charge of the Baltimore office of the FBI.

The would-be hijacker was carrying a briefcase later found to contain a crudely made bomb consisting of two one-gallon canisters of gasoline and a rudimentary detonating mechanism, Farrow said. The bomb was later destroyed by demolition experts from the Army and state police, he said.

Officer Charles Troyer of the Anne Arundel County Police Department heard the shooting and ran to the gate, where he saw the guard lying on the floor.

Troyer saw the man in the doorway of the plane and fired a shot at him as two stewardesses were closing the plane door, Farrow said. On the plane, the agent continued, the man pulled a gun from inside his coat, shouted "get back," went to the cockpit and ordered the pilot and copilot to "fly this plane out of here."

Farrow said the man fired warning shots when told the plane couldn't take off and at one point took a woman passenger at gunpoint up to the cockpit where he then shot the pilot and copilot before returning the woman to her seat.

Farrow said the gunman forced nother woman passenger to accompany him to the cockpit and again shot the two crewmen, who Farrow said at this time were slumped in their seats.

The airline said later that 49 passengers were booked on the flight but only eight were aboard at the time.

The dead copilot was identified as Fred Jones, of Dallas. He died during surgery at University Hospital. The pilot, Reese Douglas Loftin, of Fort Worth, Tex., was in critical condition.

Troyer said he ran to the front of the plane and opened fire, hitting the would-be hijacker.

The Worry Clinic

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE

CASE Z-559: Rev. Mark, aged 37, is a California pastor.

"Dr. Crane," he telephoned, "I am one of the 3,000 volunteer clergymen who help interview applicants for the Scientific Marriage Foundation.

"But now I am in need of its services, myself.

"For after 15 years of happy marriage to a wonderful wife, I lost her six months ago, due to cancer.

"We have three wonderful children, all in grammar school and I have a 60-year-old lady who now keeps house for us.

"But the children need a new mother, who is younger and thus more in tune with their current problems.

"And I am bereft without my wife, for she was worth at least 50 per cent to my success in the ministry.

"In my large church, which keeps me busy seven days per week, there are probably 20 splendid young women who'd make me an excellent new wife.

"They are 30 to 35 years of age and include teachers, nurses and a couple of airplane hostesses.

"But I must show no personal romantic interest in any one of them, lest I offend the other 19, and thus cause friction.

"However, I haven't the time to go elsewhere in search of romance.

"So could you please introduce me to a congenial girl who would make me a splendid wife and mother to my three children?

"I don't want a girl who smokes or drinks and prefer one who has some musical talent so she could play the piano at church events, if our pianists aren't present.

"And, of course, I certainly have no objection to a good looking young woman!"

Computer Cupid

The Scientific Marriage Foundation is a charitable interfaith organization, with Dr. Peale, Bishop Kennedy of California, Rabbi Silver of Connecticut, Monsignor Ward of Indiana, and other outstanding church leaders on the Board.

It employs an IBM computer, matching applicants on 10 basic factors, so they have little to quarrel about after their marriage, except trivial items such as burnt toast, etc.

We keep all information confidential and "privileged," like the relationship of doctor to patient or clergyman to parishioner.

Thus, we don't release the names or pictures of any of our applicants, even to some of the splendid national magazines that have wanted to help us by running special feature stories about the SMF.

DeWitt Wallace, publisher of Reader's Digest, thus urged us originally not to indulge in advertising, lest it make us look akin to the "Lonely Hearts" and current advertising organizations that operate "Dating Service" at $495, per year's enrollment.

Our Board voted to charge a nominal fee of only $50, to cover permanent registration.

And of some 10,000 happily married folks, plus hundreds of formerly half-orphaned kiddies who are now bubbling over with joy at being back in a normal two-parent home, we have far less than a one per cent divorce rate in 18 years' operation of SMF.

So we soon introduced Rev. Mark to a high school music teacher, aged 29, beautiful and with a true fondness for children.

She was even of his very same religious denomination and living only 50 miles from his California city.

Within six months, they were happily married and the three kiddies are now delighted with their new mother, too.

So send for the "SMF Marriage Questionnaire," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents, and give it to any eligible person wanting to marry.

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of Dixon Evening Telegraph, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs, when you send for one of his booklets.)

More oil than before possible from Arab states

WASHINGTON (AP) — The major oil producer in Saudi Arabia says that if the Arabs lift their oil embargo it can send far more oil to the United States than ever before.

Shipments by Aramco could be increased overnight by two million barrels per day above the pre-embargo levels, Michael M. Ameen Jr., company vice president, said Thursday.

Ameen said the Saudi government forced Aramco to reduce production last fall. But the company has continued to expand its facilities.

The company's present production of about 7 million barrels a day compares to 8.8 million daily before the embargo. If the embargo is lifted, Aramco production could be increased to 10.3 million barrels a day, he said.

Ameen said almost all of the 3.3 million barrel increase could be shipped to the United States. That would exceed Aramco's pre-embargo shipments to the United States by about two million barrels a day.

"We can get that oil in here (the United States) in five or six weeks," he told group of tanker executives.

Aramco's figure of 3.3 million barrels compares to total petroleum imports last week averaging 4.6 million barrels a day, according to statistics of the American Petroleum Institute.

Meanwhile, as key Arab leaders gathered for an Islamic summit conference in Pakistan, Saudi Foreign Minister Omar Sakkar said the oil embargo will not be lifted unless there is a favorable consensus among all Arab states.

Sakkar ruled out such a consensus before an agreement on the disengagement of Israeli and Syrian forces.

In the United States, federal energy chief William E. Simon met with six governors in an effort to work out a more equitable allocation of available gasoline.

Simon said the FEO is working on a new allocation formula that would take account of such factors as gasoline sales and motor vehicle registrations. Present allocations are based primarily on percentages of 1972 sales.

The governors who met with Simon were Gov. Francis W. Sargent of Massachusetts, Daniel J. Evans of Washington, James E. Holshouser of North Carolina, Phillip W. Noel of Rhode Island, Wendell H. Ford of Kentucky and Marvin Mandel of Marvland.

Bleeds to death

WASHINGTON (AP) — A 63-year-old man bled to death while waiting in a gasoline station line on Lee Highway in suburban Fairfax County, Va.

County officials said John Alfred Williams was returning to his Culpeper home Thursday after treatment at Bethesda, Md., hospital for kidney dialysis and stopped in a gas line.

A medical clamp popped loose and he was unable to stem the flow of blood from tubing that had been surgically inserted to accommodate the dialysis hookup, investigating officers said.

Passersby rushed to his aid when he screamed for help, and he was taken to Fairfax Hospital where he was pronounced dead.

Williams had been making the trip to the hospital three times a week.

The Doctor Says:

By DR. Lawrence LAMB)

DEAR DR. LAMB — Recently my 23-year-old son suffered from a collapsed lung (spontaneous pneumothorax), cause unknown. Can lungs be strengthened with a program of breathing exercises? What can be taken to avoid a recurrence?

DEAR READER — Your son has a fairly uncommon medical problem and there is some likelihood that he will have a recurrence.

A frequent cause of this problem is a small blisterlike formation on the surface of the lung called a "bleb." Remember that the lung is a complex balloon. It is filled with tiny balloons or air sacs that all eventually connect together.

The blister or bleb connects with the series of tiny balloons. When the bleb breaks, there is a slow leak of air through the resulting hole. A small "blow out" occurs, and the lung deflates.

The air that leaks out of the broken bleb accumulates between the lung and the chest wall. As it builds up it causes the lung to collapse. Usually the collapse is not complete. The partially collapsed lung no longer functions effectively in respiration. While the lung is collapsed the bursted bleb starts healing, forming a scar where the blister used to be. When the healing process is complete, the lung is air tight again. Nature has completed the "patch job." The air between the collapsed lung and the chest wall is absorbed and the lung expands, resuming its normal function.

One reason individuals who have one collapsed lung may have a recurrence is because there is often more than one bleb. Sometimes these small blebs can be seen by X ray. Usually they are located at the upper tip of the lung.

Preventive measures can be used in some instances. If there is an area at the tip of the lung with blebs, they can be removed surgically. Another technique is to surgically tack the lung to the chest wall all around so it can't collapse. Most cases do not require either of these operations. Most cases (but not all) can be treated by helping the lung expand, if and when it collapses.

The little blebs are usually there from birth. Because they are blister formations there are no exercises that will help the lungs in preventing a bleb from breaking. Other than the surgical approaches mentioned, there is not much you can do. I have discussed the typical mild problem. The situation can be more difficult. In persons with unusual occupations, for example pilots exposed to changes in air pressure from altitude, the situation is more important. When you go to altitude with air in the chest space, it can expand and cause pressure on the heart and circulation.

Most individuals who experience a collapsed lung live normal lives and are otherwise healthy. It is only when, and if, a blowout occurs that they are in trouble.

The correct play of a suit is likely to depend on how many tricks you need in it. Today's hand is a classic example of a perfect safety play. You are in a six-heart contract and the contract is a cinch if you can avoid the loss of two heart tricks.

Your only worry is if you find all four in one hand and your safety play is to lay down your ace of hearts at trick two.

West shows out, whereupon you lead a second heart to dummy's king and a third one back toward your jack.

Had East shown out you would lead a second heart toward dummy and hold West to one trump trick.

Suppose you were in seven. You would have no way to make that contract against certain holdings and would lose this time if you played your ace of hearts, but you would not make this play in a grand-slam contract.

You would lead a heart toward dummy's king. West would show out and you would have no trouble picking up East's trumps.

What should you do if West followed on the first heart? You would play to drop the queen next. With nine trumps this play gives you the best chance to pick up the whole suit.

Dear Ann

by Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: I did a terrible thing. I succumbed to temptation and read my daughter's diary this morning and now I am heartbroken.

Before I read that terrible thing, I had a wonderful relationship with my child. I trusted her and believed everything she said. We had long talks. I was sure she was the kind of 16-year-old girl every mother hopes her daughter will be. Now I know she's been lying to me and it's more than I can bear.

Please, Ann, tell children not to write anything in their diaries that they don't want their parents to see. I can't describe the emptiness and anguish I feel because of what I now know.

I hope my child reads this letter and will be among the first to destroy her diary. I hate the sight of it. — Know Too Much

Dear Mother: You are right. You did a terrible thing by invading your child's privacy. But don't believe everything you read. Some girls have vivid imaginations and transcribe their fantasies in their diaries. The diary becomes a third party and they weave some incredible yarns.

While the blame for your heartbreak lies mainly in your snooping, I agree with you that nothing should be put in writing that could not bear examination by any member of the family. I hope every girl who has a diary will ask herself, "How would my mother feel if she read it tomorrow?"

Dear Ann Landers: Last week I had a "dirty birthday" (when a woman goes from a number with a nine at the end into another decade).

My husband bought me an expensive gift that was positively hideous. My initial reaction was to feign pleasure, but the next day I decided I would be crazy not to exchange the gift for something I liked.

When I asked Leroy if he'd mind, he said, "If you feel strongly about it, go ahead." I was furious when I learned his secretary (who doesn't like me) had picked out the gift. I'm sure she chose something ugly on purpose. Furthermore, I was crestfallen to think Leroy would consider my birthday a "business duty."

Should I tell him how I feel or keep quiet? — Hurt

Dear Hurt: I agree, a gift selected by a third party becomes less meaningful. But your feelings about Leroy's secretary probably intensified your anger and magnified your hurt.

Tell Him. If your marriage is any good it should be able to tolerate such openness. In fact, this might be a splendid opportunity to open the windows and let a little fresh air in.

Dear Ann Landers: You goofed on your advice to the woman who didn't want a fourth child. Her husband refused to have a vasectomy and she couldn't go on the Pill for medical reasons. You told her to have her tubes tied after she delivered the third child. In some states the husband must give his consent.

After my fifth baby I wanted my tubes tied but my husband wouldn't sign. So my doctor inserted an intra-uterine device and told me to keep my mouth shut. It was the best thing that ever happened to me. — No Longer Barefoot And Pregnant

Dear N.L.: True, a tubal ligation needs a husband's signature in some states. Since the IUD doesn't work for everyone, the wife might check with a lawyer and learn which states don't require two signatures — and take a trip.

Things Dixon Talked About

10 YEARS AGO

A year-long study to learn more about effectiveness of play therapy and tranquilizers in helping problem children suffering from brain damage started this week at Dixon State School.

—o—

Popeye Popcorn and Lawton's Dairy scored easy victories in Dixon YMCA Basketball League play Thursday night. Popeye downed Dixon Oil, 56-39, while Lawton's Dairy topped Raynor Manufacturing, 48-35.

—o—

Dixon pulled to a 17-point lead at the end of three quarters of play here Friday night and held on to pick up its 13th victory of the season at the expense of Rock Falls, 65-54.

25 YEARS AGO

Dixon's Dukes, who continue to amaze everyone, brought their winning streak to three games in the Dixon High gym here last night as they mastered an aggressive Hall Township five from Spring Valley, 40-33.

—o—

There will be a meeting of Beta Sigma Phi sorority Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock at the Loveland Community House.

Coach Lloyd Swan's Dixon High frosh-soph squad kept pace with their varsity cohorts here last night as they scored a 28-21 victory over the Hall High freshmen-sophomores.
